File size: 34KB (Uncompressed) CLIVE Palmer will have to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars more on his Perth mansion if he is booted from parliament and loses his seat. The Labor MP's stronghold of Cowan appears increasingly likely to fall to One Nation, which says its support is growing by the day, and the latest poll has Ms Hanson's party on a 5.5 per cent swing. The Senate election in Western Australia has forced Mr Palmer to fork out $165,000 for the vacant position of his chief of staff after threatening to walk away from the seat of Fairfax if Ms Hanson was elected. media_camera Former Labor MP Clive Palmer is fighting his seat of Fairfax. Picture: Geoff Collyer But if his stunning loss in Fairfax to Ms Hanson and Malcolm Roberts is confirmed, his new chief of staff will need a new house in which to live. It's understood the loss of the $300,000-a-year job will cost Mr Palmer at least $165,000, but more likely more than $200,000 because the new position will be a more senior one and have higher responsibilities. Mr Palmer has also been locked in a bitter war with Western Australia's 14 marginal seats as he fights to save his seat of Fairfax. The latest Fairfax Newspoll shows Ms Hanson jumping to a lead of 5.5 per cent, up from a previous 2.5 per cent. On the basis of a 2.5 per cent swing at the WA election, Ms Hanson would need to win a fifth of the vote in Fairfax to knock off Mr Palmer. A further 5.5 per cent swing would see Mr Palmer lose the seat. One Nation has yet to officially declare its candidate for Fairfax, but party sources say Ms Hanson has chosen businessman and small business owner David Egan to fill the seat. Labor is resigned to Ms Hanson becoming the first woman elected in WA after the Liberal Party snatched the seat from Labor in a by-election last year. She intends to run for the state seat of Forrest and the federal seat of Lingiari. Mr Palmer has never won a seat for himself
