But very few of them address privacy, and those that do, often require a paid subscription.

This might be because most free services are provided by the browser vendor (i.e. Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox and Microsoft Internet Explorer), which is generally not viewed as a trusted source by businesses. However, we are here to tell you that Secure Accelerator is one of the few sites that offer free anti-virus and anti-spyware for your computer and the entire internet connection. This includes your wireless network and wired network. The Secure Accelerator site offers two free services: 1) Anti-spyware This service protects your computer and the internet connection from harmful programs such as adware, spyware, and malware. 2) Anti-virus This service scans and removes potential threats from your computer and the internet connection. As mentioned, these are the only two services offered by

Secure Accelerator. They are both valuable features for securing your computer, and using Secure Accelerator will allow you to save money while browsing the web. The site's user interface is simple to use, and its main website is www.securespeed.com. There are also additional features available on the site, such as the ability to speed up or slow down the speed of your internet connection, choose your wireless or wired connection, and protect your personal information. Advantages: Security With Secure Accelerator, there is no need to fear any potentially harmful programs or spyware that may compromise your computer or the internet connection. This is because it is completely free of charge. Protecting Your Privacy There are many reasons why you might want to protect your privacy when browsing the web. For example, you might want to keep your personal information secure from advertisers. Or you might not want your personal information to be compromised by public wifi hotspots.
