Controller::$this->viewVars['error'] I am having some issues understanding how the CakePHP way of doing things (view/controllers) works. I have a AuthController that's essentially a front controller for all the websites in my organization. It has the following basic structure (simplified for the sake of this example): // login function if($this->Auth->login($this->data, $this->Auth->identity)) { $this->_redirect('home'); } else { // Auth fail stuff } In the home action I'll have this: public function home() { $this->loadModel('Model'); $this->Model->query(); if($results = $this->Model->getResults()) { $this->set(compact('results')); $this->viewVars['error'] = false; } } So as you can see I've set $this->viewVars['error'] to false to show the user that he's logged in. However, when I look at the value of $this->viewVars['error'] I get NULL (well... it's actually false because of the compact() function).
Any ideas on how I can set $this->viewVars['error'] to false in the home controller action? I tried this: // login function if($this->Auth->login($this->data, $this->Auth->identity)) { $this->Model->query(); $this->_redirect('home', array('return' => 'home')); } else { // Auth fail stuff } and then
